6,393 Sailors, Marines In First Casualty List

EVERY STATE IN UNION INCLUDED IN DEATH TOLL

Of 2,991 Killed About 2,000 Lost Lives In Raid On Pearl Harbor

ALL THEATRES INCLUDED

Announcement Covers Period From Dec. 7 To April 15—2,495 Men Missing

WASHINGTON, May 2—In the first overall tabulation of known American casualties in World War II, the Navy today listed 6,393 bluejackets, marines and coast guardsmen representing every state in the Union as dead, missing or wounded as the result of "direct action with the enemy" in approximately four months of fighting on scattered fronts.

Covering the period from the Japanese surprise attack upon Pearl Harbor December 7 to April 15 of this year, the Navy report classified the casualties as follows: dead, 2,991; missing, 2,495 and wounded, 907. Subsequent reports may boost these totals.

"The preponderant share of these casualties resulted from direct action with the enemy," the Navy said, "but included in the total are names of those who were lost in accidents at sea and in the air on duty directly connected with wartime operations."

Cross Section of Youth

Men from the 48 states as well as Alaska, Panama, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, and the Philippines made up the casualty list, a veritable cross-section of American youth who have been fighting heroically against the axis powers on scattered fronts throughout the world.

TEN TEACHERS FLOG BOY; ALL UNDER ARREST

NORRISTOWN, Pa., May 2—Principal Robert B. Taylor and nine other members of the faculty of Norristown's David Rittenhouse junior high school were under arrest today on charge of flogging 15-year-old Michael Valerio, a pupil.

The warrants were sworn out on complaint of the boy's father, Rosario A. Valerio, who claimed that four of the men teachers gave Michael about 50 lashes with a heavy leather strap while the other instructors held him spread-eagled on a table top.

Dr. Taylor at a preliminary hearing freely admitted administering the whipping, claiming that the boy was incorrigible and asking that he be sent to a reformatory. Judge Harold G. Knight yesterday, however, refused to commit the boy and told him to return to his classroom Monday.

The instructors were freed under bail pending a further hearing next week.

New Rules Are To Cost 50 Millions

40,000 Employees Needed To Direct Price Control And Rationing

WASHINGTON, May 2—Government officials predicted today that the federal payroll will jump more than $50,000,000-a-year as the result of creation of large field staffs to administer the vast price control, rent and rationing programs.

Those who made the estimate said it was conservative. They forecast that more than 40,000 persons will be hired soon, between 20,000 and 30,000 of them for the price control and rationing programs. Between 85 and 95 percent of new employees, according to informed spokesmen at the U. S. Civil Service commission, will be scattered in regional, state, district and local offices throughout the country.

The $50,000,000, it was declared, represented only payrolls alone and does not include funds which must be spent for office rents, equipment and other supplies. Federal Price Administrator Leon Henderson was expected to have the biggest staff because of the gigantic price, rationing and rent program facing him.

Some of the increases in employment from June 1940 to the present time included:

President Roosevelt's executive staff 2,822; State department 760; treasury 5,914; war 470,066; justice 11,300; postoffice 23,758; Navy 233,699; labor 1,357; Federal Loan agency 18,567; OEM 17,528; and selective service 16,443.

STUDENT DIES PLAYING RUSSIAN GUN ROULETTE

NEW YORK, May 2—Frank O'Neil, 20-year-old Fordham university sophomore, was dead today because of his bravado in playing "Russian roulette."

The czarist gun-game, a plot often used in melodramatic movies, calls for the removal of all except one cartridge from a six-chambered revolver and the player risks his life on the chance of the firing pin hitting one of the five empty chambers.

O'Neil was in the bedroom of his Brooklyn home demonstrating the game to a friend, John Sheridan, 20, Queens.

"I read about it in a book," O'Neil said. "It's called the Russian general's roulette game. Here I'll show you."

With that he pressed the muzzle of the revolver to his right temple and pulled the trigger. The five-to-one gamble on life was lost.

100,000 GATHER AT DOWNS FOR TURF CLASSIC

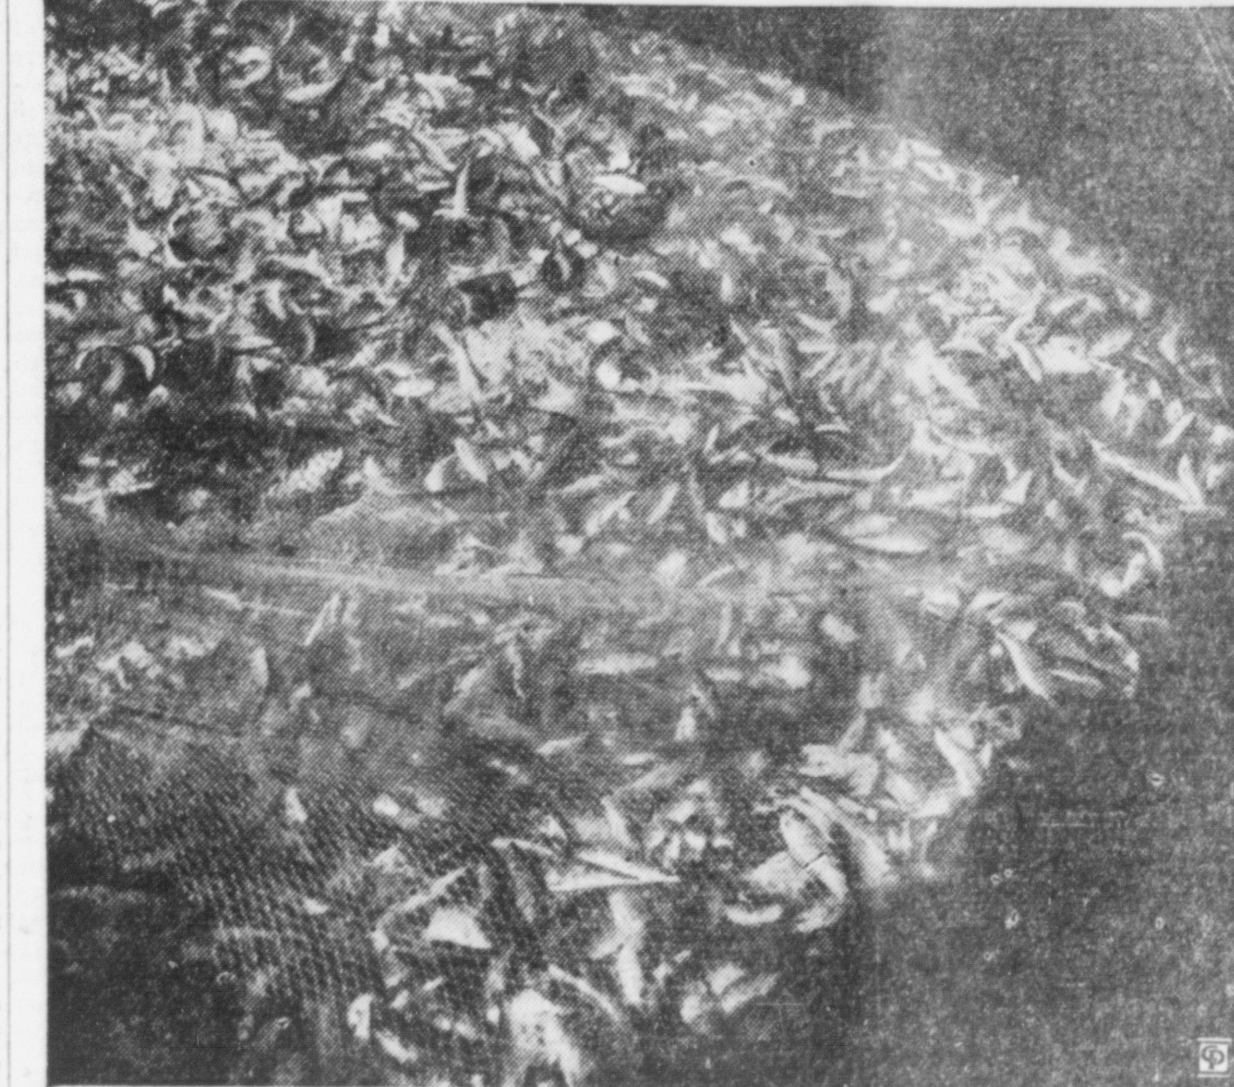

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2—Nearly 100,000 expectant souls from every state in the union today moved toward Churchill Downs to witness the 68th running of the race of races—the Kentucky Derby.

It is likely that 17 horses will go to the post. If all 17 entries go to the post the purse will amount to $87,250, of which the winner will receive a total of $65,225.

Consensus of opinion seemed to point toward the Greentree stable's entry of Devil Diver and Shutout, and Requested as the favorites.

The track record, set last year by Whirlaway, is 2:01 2-5. The big mystery horse of the race is Alsab, the colt which was a sensation in 1941, but has failed to show proof of his old speed during the Winter program. Despite his lack of zip this year, Alsab is favored by many who followed his triumphs in better days. Valdina Orphan, winner of the Derby trial, is another horse with many followers.

CONGRESS MAPS FREEZING LAWS

Wages As Well As Prices To Be Affected In Support Of War Program

By WILLIAM S. NEAL INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 2—Legislative proposals for a general "freezing" program, which would include fixing of wages as well as prices, were being framed in both Senate and House today on the theory that President Roosevelt's far-reaching program must be strengthened.

Sen. Bennett C. Clark (D) Mo., and Rep. Albert Gore (D) Tenn., both disclosed they are framing bills designed to carry out the general wartime restrictions advocated by Bernard M. Baruch, who was chairman of the war industries board in World War No. I.

ITALY FURTHER SHACKLED AFTER LEADERS' PARLEY

LONDON, May 2—The recent conference at Salzburg between Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini will result in greater German control over Italy, informed circles in London said today.

In pointing out that Mussolini is playing an increasing subservient role in the axis set-up, observers cited a Rome radio announcement shortly after the Salzburg meeting, held last Wednesday and Thursday, which disclosed that "another large batch of German police arrived in Rome Friday."

It Duce summoned a session of the Council of Ministers immediately upon his return to hear what the British press called "Hitler's instructions."

Evidence of further German control in Italy was seen in the announcement of Virginia Gayda, Fascist editor, that thousands more of German troops would move into Italy while part of the Italian army will be sent to the Russian front.

ALIENS NABBED

TRENTON, N. J., May 2—Federal Bureau of Investigation agents raided 26 New Jersey communities last night and early today and took a number of enemy aliens into custody.

Working with swift efficiency, the FBI men under command of E. E. Conroy, seized large amounts of contraband and a large bust of Mussolini.

ELEANOR SEES WASTE IN BAN ON ALIEN GROUP

NEW YORK, May 2—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said today that it was a "terrible waste" not to accept the help of aliens who are anxious to aid in the war effort but are turned back because of nationality.

"Some who are not citizens want to help more than many who are," the first lady asserted at the 12th annual conference of the National Council on Naturalization and Citizenship.

At the same time she urged Americans to adopt a "new attitude" of post-war cooperation toward other races which are now allied with us.

GIRLS TRAINING FOR SERVICE IN GAS STATIONS

ROCKFORD, Ill., May 2—Encouraged by the city's success in supplying women taxicab drivers, Mrs. Monty B. Bird, president of an oil company, today planned to start training women filling station attendants.

Mrs. Bird said women can be trained to do everything necessary at a filling station, including the more back-breaking jobs such as greasing cars and trucks, and that she anticipates plenty of fair applicants for the work.

When a taxicab company advertised for "experienced" women drivers, more than fifty applied.

Sugar Rationers Ready To List Local Users

While all consumers of sugar residing in Pickaway county rural areas and villages will register in the elementary schools of their respective districts, Frank Fischer, superintendent of Circleville schools, announced Saturday that all city consumers will register at the Corwin street-high school building.

This plan also includes all residents of Circleville township.

Registration will be conducted Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 3 p. m. to 10 p. m. each day.

Registrants are asked to follow the suggested alphabetical schedule, if at all possible, in order to relieve congestion. The suggested plan is this: persons whose surnames begin with A and G through E report Monday; names beginning with F through K report Tuesday; names beginning with L and running through R on

GEORGIA JOCK FOOLS JAP GOBS

Fleet Mates Tell How Skipper Of U. S. Destroyer Set Foes Fighting Themselves

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, May 2—Directing a single American destroyer through a Jap cruiser squadron and destroyer flotilla unscathed is no mean feat in itself, but to accomplish it and the Japanese ships battling each other in confusion to boot—well, to a U. S. Navy man that sounds like the fine hand of "Georgia Jock" Cooper.

"Georgia Jock" is really Lieut. Commander Jack Cooper, a soft-spoken gent who can snap out his orders without losing his southern drawl.

You may have guessed by now that the story of the destroyer's dash and the Japanese bungling did not emanate from "Georgia Jock." Instead, it came from his fleet mates, who can scarcely talk about anything else—unless it is about how Command Cooper led his own destroyer flotilla within 150 yards of the Japanese fleet in the Macassar straits battle for a torpedo attack.

Cooper Is Mum

When I asked Cooper about both episodes, he drawled: "You know the Navy, my boy. We never say anything."

The ship which weaved through the Japanese vessels was one of the veterans of the United States (Continued on Page Eight)

Salt Lake Airport Ready To Receive Ship When Flight Ends In Fiery Crash

SALT LAKE CITY, May 2—The badly-burned bodies of seventeen persons—including three Navy and Army officers and two civilian military experts—were removed today from the wreckage of a San Francisco-to-New York passenger plane that crashed late last night on a Salt Lake City peak a few miles from the famed Mormon tabernacle.

Among the 14 passengers killed were Lieutenant Commander J. G. Burrows, U.S.N., who was en route to Washington, D. C., and M. L. Patterson and F. B. Vose, connected with the Sperry Gyroscope Co. which manufactures secret navigation devices for the United Nations' aviation branches.

Besides Lieut. Commander Burrows, the other officers killed were Lieut. Herman J. Frankenburg, U. S. Army, and Lieut. C. S. Tucker, U.S.N.

Women Among Victims

Three women were among the victims, including two women passengers, the infant son of one of the women, and the plane's stewardess.

The crash was the first major domestic airlines disaster since fifteen Army officers, Film Star Carole Lombard, her mother and her publicity agent and three crew members were killed near Las Vegas, Nev., January 16.

Local officials of the civil aeronautics board opened an immediate investigation. Four other crack investigators were ordered to the scene upon orders from (Continued on Page Eight)

MOTHER GAINED SEAT ON DOOMED PLANE FOR SON

CHICAGO, May 2—A Chicago mother today suffered agonies of remorse because she pleaded successfully with United Airlines executives to sell her a seat on a sold-out plane so her soldier son could fly here from California on his ten-day leave.

The mother was Mrs. Sadie Shapiro, wife of Morris Shapiro, president of Morris fisheries, Inc., of Chicago, and the son was Private Marvin Shapiro, 25, an only son who was killed with sixteen others when the plane crashed in Salt Lake city last night.

The family with great difficulty had arranged for his passage, and was expecting to greet him this morning.

STUDENTS TOO HOT BLOODED, COLONEL THINKS

CHICAGO, May 2—The nation's college students, once pictured as somewhat dilettante, instead are too hot-blooded for this war, and are over-doing the matter of rushing into military service.

This warning came today from Col. Zim E. Lawton, the War department's co-ordinator of military personnel, who pointed out that the students are of more use to the Army and Navy after they have completed their college courses.

"Too often we have allowed the flower of our young manhood to be sacrificed during the first hectic months of war," the colonel said. "The value of their education and leadership qualities have been extravagantly expended to the detriment of subsequent efforts to attain victory."

Eye-Witness Tells Story Of Disaster

Salt Lake Inn Keeper, First At Scene, Shocked By Terrible Deaths

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A vivid story of the crash of the San Francisco-to-New York plane last night at Salt Lake City was told to International News Service by George Gearhart, only eye-witness to the accident. Gearhart's story follows.)

SALT LAKE CITY, May 2—About 10:55 last night, I happened to be outside my inn—five miles north of Salt Lake City and I heard the sound of airplane motors. They were awfully loud and I knew something must be wrong. I looked around and saw the big ship coming through the rain, from the north, right into the foothills near my place. The plane was going fast and I could see the lights plainly.

A minute or two later, the plane hit. It sounded like the end of the world and there was a terrible flash. I ran back into the restaurant and yelled for someone to call the airport and then I grabbed my flashlight and started up the mountain.

It was pretty wet and it took me about twenty minutes to get there. Then I wished I hadn't gone.

The blaze had died down somewhat, and in the wreckage that (Continued on Page Eight)

FIRE PLUGS MAY BE STANDS FOR PARKING TAXIS

WASHINGTON, May 2—Plans were being made in Washington today to designate the space adjacent to every fireplug in American cities as parking stands for taxis.

Defense Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman has stated that cruising by taxis must be eliminated in order to save both rubber and gasoline. That brought up the problem of where to park the cabs.

Thinkers in the office of defense transportation put their heads together and came up with this solution: allow taxis to park next to fire hydrants as long as the drivers remain in their cabs.

They explained that a cabbie, after dropping a customer at a building in downtown areas, could go to the nearest fire plug and park to wait for his next customer. The public, they added, would become accustomed to looking for the nearest fire plug instead of stepping into the street to hail a cab.

ISLANDERS BUY $335,000 BONDS IN SINGLE DAY

HONOLULU, May 2—Officials estimated today that approximately $335,000 worth of war bonds and stamps were purchased in Hawaii yesterday as the islands celebrated their historic "Lei day" in a unique manner.

In addition to wearing the traditional flower lei, every person on the islands was supposed to buy a war bond or stamp. The quota of $250,000 had been exceeded by noon and if the $335,000 figure is reached, it will represent a third of the entire May quota for the islands.

Gov. J. B. Poindexter led purchases by buying $10,000 worth of the bonds. Army and Navy personnel also bought substantially.

SIX PRISONERS BREAK JAIL AT SPRINGFIELD

SPRINGFIELD, May 2—Six prisoners, one of them described as "very dangerous," escaped from the Clark county jail at Springfield today after slugging a guard. One was recaptured within an hour.

The ring-leader of the escape plot was believed to be Melvin J. Blanton, 30, who was being held on a robbery charge. He was described as five feet seven inches tall, 130 pounds in weight and dark complexioned.

Congress Resolution Says No Compromise With Britain Possible

PLANES AGAIN RAP JAPS

United Nations Push Drive To Keep Invasion Forces On Defensive

ALLAHABAD, India, May 2—By the overwhelming margin of 176 to four, the all-India congress party's working committee today passed a resolution declaring that resistance to any invasion of India "can only take the form of non-violent non-cooperation."

The resolution also said no compromise with Britain was possible and warned: "Britain must abandon its hold on India."

The vote was regarded as a complete victory for Mohandas K. Gandhi, spiritual leader of India's Hindu millions, and his "non-violence" policy.

By a margin of 120 to 15, the committee rejected a resolution introduced by C. R. Rajagopalachari, former premier of Madras, which would have recognized the claim of the all-India Moslem League for independence. Rajagopalachari resigned from the committee Thursday, anticipating defeat for his effort.

A counter-resolution opposing any proposal to "disintegrate" India then passed by a vote of 97 to 17.

Japs Kept Busy

Pushing their campaign to keep potential Japanese invasion forces constantly on the defensive in the island chain north of Australia, United Nations bombers have lashed out with fresh blows against the New Britain base of Gasmata, General Douglas MacArthur announced today.

The blast at Gasmata, centered on Japanese airdrome installations, extended the sphere of the current series of attacks by the American and Australian fliers, who have previously bombed and strafed objectives at Rabaul in New Britain; Lae and Salamaua in New Guinea; and Kupang on Dutch Timor island.

SOLDIER DIES AT CAMP POLK BASE HOSPITAL

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fetherolf of Deercreek township, near Williamsport, received a telegram from Camp Polk, La., Saturday, announcing death of their son, Private Sam Fetherolf, a member of the 143rd Armored Signal company in training there.

The telegram said that cause of death was unknown. His parents are awaiting more information from Army authorities. Mr. Fetherolf died in the camp hospital.

He was born in Pickaway county December 19, 1912, and is survived by his parents, a sister, Mary Humphreys and a brother, Glen Dewitt Fetherolf of the home.

Funeral arrangements in charge of C. E. Hill are not complete.

NAZI FUGITIVE NABBED

DETROIT, May 2—Lieut. Peter Krug, 21-year-old Nazi flying officer who escaped from a Canadian prison camp and made his way through Detroit, has been taken into custody in San Antonio, Tex., John S. Bugas, chief of the Detroit division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced today.

Bugas said that Krug was taken into custody last night. Krug eluded officers in Detroit who took into custody Max Stephan, 46, a restaurant owner charged with harboring Krug in Detroit. He is now held for trial.

Krug was captured in his hotel room and put up only slight resistance, Bugas said. Krug had no opportunity to reach for a gun which lay on the dresser in the room, Bugas said.

BOYS TAKE OVER OFFICIAL POSTS AT CITY HALL

Junior Government Serves As Fitting Climax To Local Youth Week

SHEA SERVES AS MAYOR

Temporary Chiefs Plan Probe Of Complaints Made By Citizens

Brightly shined badges designating their official capacity as city officials for a day bedecked the shirt pockets of seven Circleville school youths Saturday, the junior officers filling the duties of mayor, safety and service director, police chief, fire chief and assistants for each of the latter.

The Junior Government was set up as a fitting climax to Boys' and Girls' week conducted in Circleville under supervision of the Circleville Recreation department working in cooperation with the WPA recreation division, headed by Eugene Boring.

Tommy Shea, sophomore in Circleville high, became the city's mayor, and he was being given instructions by Mayor Ben H. Gordon concerning his various duties.

Officials Elected

Shea, elected by high school pupils, had as his official family Jack Wise as fire chief, Dick Shaw as police chief, Robert Valentine as safety director and Howard Moore as service director. Wise's assistant was Freck Heath, and James Wells was named as Shaw's assistant police chief.

The boys gathered at City Hall at 9 o'clock Saturday and were taken to the council chamber by Mayor Gordon. Police Chief W. F. McCrady, Safety Director W. E. Weiler and Service Director Clarence Helvering. An oath of office was assumed by each lad, and a tour of the city's institutions was next in line.

Officials, who planned later in the day to provide a couple of court test cases, were to take the lads to the disposal plant, to hospital, the fire department engine house and the health office.

Complaints Probed

Several minor complaints made by city residents were to be investigated, also, by the youthful officials.

Boys' and Girls' week has proven an outstanding success, with many youngsters participating. Last Saturday saw the start of the event with a hike being taken to Devil's Backbone. Sunday, numerous pastors preached sermons of especial interest to youngsters.

Next came Afro-American day Thursday with many of the city's Negro youths, and grownups, also, taking part in a planned program which included a dance in Memorial hall. A parade was conducted Friday afternoon with the school band and numerous school youngsters marching to Ted Lewis recreation center, which was officially opened for the summer.

Various games and contests were conducted at the park, and in the evening the WPA concert band of Columbus appeared in a program in Memorial hall. Later in the evening the WPA dance band played for about 300 persons who enjoyed an evening of entertainment.

PAY DAY AT AIR BASE INCREASES CITY BUSINESS

Circleville and Ashville merchants were reaping a harvest Saturday as a result of pay day at the Lockbourne air base, just north of the Pickaway county line.

City officials estimate that between 35 and 50 Circleville men and an undetermined number from the Ashville-South Bloomfield community are employed at the air base. Others have moved into the district after accepting construction work there.

Friday was the first pay day for many of the men, and some of the local stores were busy cashing checks Friday night, other checks being cashed in the city's banks Saturday.

The air base has become a beehive of activity with construction work being speeded so that training of flyers can start as soon as possible.

CITY SOLICITOR PROVIDES BIG PROBLEM IN LAW

Joe Adkins is one of Circleville's most ardent bicyclists, in fact he has learned to almost stay upright when riding with only one on the handlebars. But Joe is also Police Chief Will McCrady's pet difficulty at the present time.

It all comes about through Joe's bike and the parking meters for which Joe wrote legislation, since he is city solicitor.

It seems that the attorney rides his vehicle to his office almost every day, and Chief McCrady hasn't been able to get him to stand still long enough to buy a license for it.

But here comes the rub. McCrady says Adkins rides the bicycle to avoid paying pennies into the parking meters, but the other day the chief found the solicitor's velocipede chained to a parking meter in front of the Masonic temple where Adkins holds forth. And the meter wasn't registering a deposit.

Now the question is: Should Adkins be tagged for overtime parking, for failure to have a license for his bicycle, or for what? But you can bet McCrady's going to get him for some violation of the law, especially since Adkins has been writing all laws put on the city books in the last four or five years.

TUBERCULOSIS CONTROL HEADS HEALTH REPORT

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway county health commissioner, Friday reported activities of his office during the last month when the Pickaway county health board conducted its monthly meeting. Highlight of the month's work was the tuberculosis control program conducted with assistance of Berger hospital and Dr. M. D. Miller of the Franklin county sanitarium.

A summary of activities included two quarantines for scarlet fever; one man placed under Pasteur treatment after being bitten by a skunk suspected of being rabid; two refractations made and three tonsilectomies performed during month; four water analyses made. The report of Health Nurse Margaret Hunsicker included 18 home visits for infant hygiene, 20 home visits for preschool hytorney, rose and stammered: "But I don't wish to be recognized. Mr. Chairman. I have nothing to say."

During the roar which followed, quick-thinking Martin recovered with this clever piece of parliamentarianism:

"The gentleman from Louisiana moves that a committee on proxies be appointed . . . I hear no objections . . . It is so ordered."

LITTLE BUSINESS

Unfortunately it looks as if the little business man now has no better chance for government loans than during the days before Jesse Jones was stripped of sole control over little business financing.

Under the President's executive order deposing Jones, the Army and Navy were given authority to grant loans to subcontractors for war work. That is, they were empowered to extend loans, in the form of advance payments, up to 100 percent of the needs of the little business man.

But neither the Army nor Navy is using this authority. Both are resorting to the same banker practices for which Jones was condemned.

Instead of using their authority to cut red tape and make direct loans, this is what has happened: The Army and Navy have laid down rules that compel little business men to seek credit they need from commercial banks. For this money they will pay from 1 1/2 to 3 percent interest—on loans guaranteed up to 90 percent by the government.

In other words, a subcontractor must go to a bank for a war work loan, and if the bank won't grant it, then he has to start all over again and go to the Federal Reserve Board—which will take the matter "under consideration."

So it's pretty much the same old run-around in new trappings.

To help direct this banker-led system a big-shot Chicago banker has been brought to Washington by Sidney Weinberg, who is assistant to War Production Chief Donald Nelson and who was senior partner of Goldman, Sachs & Co., New York investment firm. Weinberg's selection is Mark Brown, of the Harris Trust & Savings Bank. Working with him will be Lt. Col. John L. Meechem, former vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago.

A bill long has been pending in Congress to create a special little business loan agency with ample funds to extend such credits. After the President issued his executive order, interest in this bill waned, but now it looks as if the little business loan problem will never be solved until Congress takes the bit in its teeth and passes legislation expressly to take care of the long neglected little fellow.

NOTE: Certain Washington masterminds might well note the advice of the London Economist: "In the war sense, the role of finance in law is to insure that nothing is ever decided on financial grounds."

SMILIN' THROUGH PLEASES CROWD AT HIGH SCHOOL

An enthusiastic audience which applauded each act and which filled the high school auditorium Friday night thoroughly enjoyed the second presentation of "Smilin' Through", the senior class play. The production was under direction of Samuel R. Johnson, dramatics coach. Music added to the program.

The cast included, Mary Lou Kochheiser, Harry Clifton, William Burget, Marcella Cunningham, Jean Imler, Glenn Barnhart, Lillian Thompson, Robert Goeller and Robert Kline.

James Carr, Frank Geib, Fred Martin and Stewart Martin were responsible for the fine stage setting. ## Farming in Southern Ohio

BY THOMAS E. BEERY

"Damping Off"

If you are having trouble with your plants in the bed "damping off" or getting weak stems, just above the ground and dying, try treating the seed with red copper oxide. It is inexpensive and your druggist is sure to have it on hand. Southern Ohio readers can get it at the E. B. Ayers drug store in Hillsboro, I just learned and I expect they will have no trouble getting it from any good druggist. One can't afford to have plants weaken and die this year, with the nation and the world looking to us to feed them.

Good Pig Record

Ora Redkey, Hillsboro R. F. D. reports saving 49 pigs from 5 sows. One had 16 and one 13 which are unusual litters. How is that for a record?

Well fed breeding stock, that was compelled to exercise, by feeding them out in the fields, and comfortable beds, and a light ration before and after farrowing, briefly accounts for this good record.

Blood Spots in Eggs

Frightening the hens and making them jump when you are cleaning the hen house, or keeping cockerels with the hens, that frighten them and chase them around at times, are common preventable causes of blood spots in eggs; for the egg "cuts loose" too soon, as one man expressed it, and there is a slight hemorrhage.

The remedy is evident. Use care in cleaning the hen house, which should be done every two weeks; and remove the cockerels, for they are not necessary for egg production unless you are producing eggs for hatching.

Pure Bred Durocs

Mitchell Floyd and Albert Certier, Lynchburg, R. F. D. who own and operate a 300 acre farm under the firm name of Certier Brothers, have scattered their pure bred Duroc hogs all over southern Ohio. "There is a reason for this, for we hold to a short legged, deep bodied, smooth, compact hog, with plenty of stretch and early maturity and a deep cherry red color," one of the brothers pointed out.

It is not unusual for this firm to send fat hogs to Cincinnati that sell at a premium.

A Purina Hog Program

Here is the program recommended and used by the Purina Feed company and thousands of their customers, that is very satisfactory at two weeks of age creep feed; four weeks castrate; six weeks vaccinate against hog cholera; eight weeks wean; ten weeks worm; six months market, when they should weigh well over 200 pounds, if you started out with good hogs, gave the mother proper attention before and after farrowing, feed a good ration and kept the porkers on clean ground all the time with plenty of pure fresh water close to them.

We'll dare you to try this method. It may seem unusual to you, but it is practical and it works.

Mashed Potato Dough Nut Recipe

We are indebted to Mrs. Lily Hopkins of Hillsboro for the following recipe for making dough nuts, using mashed potatoes in the ingredients, that is very satisfactory:—

Beat to a cream 2 eggs 1 1/2 cups sugar, 2 table spoons butter or one of butter and one of lard, add 2 cups mashed potatoes, 1/2 cup milk, 4 to 5 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, and one teaspoon nutmeg and make into a soft dough, fry in lard and roll in sugar, if desired.

Sounds good, doesn't it? It is good too, for we tasted some of the finished product, while it was still hot.

You'll like this recipe and want to file it with the others in your home.

when pheasants are being distributed in most rural sections of Ohio. Seventy-five were recently sent to Highland county; a trio of them two hens and a cock, going to our own farm.

We expected to see them fly away, when they were released but they didn't. They just ran swiftly on the ground for a few rods and then hid in deep tall grass, more like frightened chickens.

"Don't be surprised if many of the pheasants of southern Ohio spend most of their time on the ground and do less and less flying," Eugene McConaughy, game management agent for Highland county recently pointed out. "Pheasants raised on the state game farms are getting tamer all the time," he continued.

Pure Bred Berkshire Hogs

Guy Rhonemus and son, Lynchburg, R. F. D. 2 have some of the best Berkshire hogs that I have seen for a long time. There were 80 in the herd at the time of my visit, and all of them were good. "We cull and we cull all the time," Mr. Rhonemus explained. "When we get one a little off in type, it goes over the scales as a finished lard hog, but most of our best hogs find a ready market in Highland and adjoining counties," he continued.

While this firm has always been able to dispose of their surplus breeding stock locally they have had inquiries from nine states and they surely made a splendid record on the state and county fair circuits.

Management

The hogs are kept growing rapidly from the time they are born until they are added to the breeding herd, or sold to someone wanting an addition to his herd, or to get started with Berkshires.

The prices are reasonable and the firm stands squarely behind every sale, so it is no wonder they have built up a nice business in pure bred hogs during the five years they have been in business. Continued success to you, good people and you'll have it.

JAMES RYAN INJURED

James Ryan, South Court street, suffered a painfully cut right eye at 4:45 a. m. Saturday when he walked into the sharp edge of a wing on a 2300 taxicab parked at the taxi stand on South Court street.

Ryan had received a telephone call for a cab and had walked downstairs from the cab company offices to waken a driver when he was hurt. He was given treatment in the office of a Circleville physician.

Sunday—The Day of Acclaim

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Mark 11:1-11; Luke 19:41-44.

When Jesus and His disciples came near to Jerusalem, He sent two of His disciples into the nearest village.

Jesus told the two disciples to find a colt which was tied and to bring the animal to Him.

When bystanders asked them why they took the colt, the disciples told them, "The Lord hath need of him."

The colt was brought to Jesus, the disciples put their garments on him and Jesus mounted. (Golden Text: Mark 11:9)

Sunday—The Day of Acclaim

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for May 3 is Mark 11:1-11; Luke 19:41-44, the Golden Text being Mark 11:9, "Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord.")

THERE IS something especially delightful to us who follow Christ's life on earth, about His triumphant entry into Jerusalem. It is as if a dear earthly friend, who has had a hard struggle, finally has a wonderful happiness and triumph; is acclaimed by all for his superior qualities and achievements. Even though he may suffer later, we share with him the joy of this day.

It is not a day of unmitigated joy for our Lord. Before the journey is ended He weeps over Jerusalem. But it is a happy day, nevertheless, for at the end, we are told, He went back to Bethany, and to the home of His dear friends, Martha, Mary and Lazarus.

It is told that when Christ and His disciples neared Jerusalem, near also to Bethany and Bethphage, He called two of His disciples and told them to go to the next village, where they would find a young colt tied that had never been ridden by a human being. The colt was an ass, a staller, livelier, swifter animal than ours, and one on which kings and princes rode.

The Lord's Need Enough
They were to untie this colt and bring him to Jesus. If anyone asked them why they were taking him, they would answer, "The Lord hath need of him," and no one would interfere. The two did as they were asked, found the colt tethered to his master's house, and brought him to Jesus. Some did ask why they loosed him, but when they gave Jesus' answer, they were allowed to take him.

When the disciples brought the animal to Jesus, they put their garments on him and Jesus mounted. Others spread their outer wraps in front of Him and still others cut down palm branches and strewed them in His path, and a great procession started toward Jerusalem, the people shouting with joy and singing, "Hosanna; blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord; Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, that cometh in the name of the Lord."

ASHVILLE

Over 100 civilian defense council members, Community Club members and others attended the dedication ceremonies of the community hall in the Odd Fellows Building Wednesday night.

Through the efforts of the recreation committee of the defense council of which Miss Helen Bowers is the head, and various members of the Community Club, the newly decorated hall was officially turned over to Mayor Fred Hines by Community Club president, Harold J. Bowers in a short talk in which emphasis was placed on the importance of and the need for such a club room in Ashville.

While one of the main purposes of the new club room is to provide a place of recreation for defense workers and military men, Mr. Bowers pointed out that any organization in the village is welcome to the use of the hall.

Rev. Dwight Woodworth of the Methodist Church talked briefly regarding the part the various churches should play in the successful operation of the club room and Miss Bowers spoke of plans which are being made for prospective activities. Mr. Harry Margulis gave a talk on the much discussed subject of morale.

Prior to the dedication meeting, an hour's concert was presented in Long street by the V.F.W. band under the direction of Fred Hines. Another musical treat was enjoyed later on in the hall by the WPA orchestra from Columbus.

The members of the newly organized Boy Scout troop were in uniform and offered their services in various ways during the evening's activities.

Will Fischer Sr., a member of the board of trustees of the Community Club, presided at the meeting and introduced the speakers. Rev. Fudge of the Lutheran Church and Rev. Smith, United Brethren minister, assisted in the dedication.

Flowers for the occasion were provided by florist, M. M. Holt.

Found out Thursday through Hoadley Brintlinger about how come the old grand piano to be where it is in the second story floor of the Odd Fellow building. It has a companion now, since the master mover men that we mentioned Wednesday, brought its mate down from the third story. This fine old grand in its hey day, was priced at, at least, a half thousand dollars, but was thrown in as full measure deal with the new and modern one, for an even ten-spot, a price that'll not take on much depreciation.

The fresh air picture show which had been scheduled for Thursday evening, May 7, has been dated forward to May 14.

Edwin Eakin, a 2nd grade, 8 year old youngster over in the Pickerington schools, Fairfield county, is reported to hold first honors with his school work in all the village schools of that county. His parents are John W. and Helen Baum Eakin and the maternal grandparents, Lloyd and Faith Plum Baum, up Duval way.

Charles and Mrs. White with Mr. and Mrs. M. L. White and Miss Betty Monroe have returned home after spending a few days at Camp Blanding, Florida, visiting with the son of the first named, Earl White, in camp there since February.

The interior of the Citizens Bank is being much improved in appearance by receiving a fresh coat of paint at the hands of the Alexander Brothers and their reliable assistant, Charles Nicholson. The Ashville Bank had its shining up a couple of weeks ago with Lawrence Peters artist.

As a ground airplane mechanic, Thomas Purcell Jr., received his graduating certificate Saturday at the Jacksonville, Florida school. His mother, Mrs. Thomas Purcell of north of here, was with her son at the time of graduation. She returned home yesterday.

The week ending April 24 produced the great amount in war stamp and war bond sales at Ashville school, $58.85 being received for this period. This total included two bonds, $18.75 each. This record represents quite a comeback after the low record of the previous week when only $8.35 was taken in.

Chances that last week's record will be shattered are very good and from the looks of sales made thus far a very interesting report will be forthcoming sometime next week.

Ashville people—buy your war stamps and bonds through the school; the county school contest is still going strong and our school is not among the leaders as yet but with your constant purchases we may get into the top ranking spot.

Superintendent C. A. Higley, school site administrator for the Ashville village school district, has held a meeting of the teachers who are to act as registrars for the sugar rationing project the first four days of next week, May 4, 5, 6, 7.

He says the force is ready to go at any time but has a few suggestions to make for the benefit of the public.

Please don't come to register before 4:15 p. m., but don't wait till 10 p. m. to do it, or till the last day.

Come prepared to give a full description such as age, height, weight, color of eyes and hair, etc., of each person for whom you expect to register. Also, be prepared to tell the number of pounds of sugar on hand and, especially if you are to sign for a whole family, don't expect to accomplish the job in less than half an hour.

All persons from babies up, except those in the armed services or public institutions, are entitled to war ration books, but minors, unless married, should be registered by parent or guardian.

Before mentioning a thing else, it is telling the whole truth when stating that the Mother Goose May Day performance on the school lawn Friday afternoon was in the super-excellent class and a most pleasing show. It is hoped that those who worked so hard to make it the fine success it was, will decide to give a repeat of it, the costumes being already in waiting.

Laudy Sturgill is down town again after being confined to his bed for a few days by sickness. That big elm stump assigned to him to remove, he has concluded to let remain where it is, but cover it over and hide it with vining flowers.

JOBS FOR UNCLE

THE United States government, in safeguarding Americans and American interests and necessarily playing uncle to a large part of the outside world, naturally has to get rough occasionally. Thus the President in his latest fireside talk gave warning to Vichy-France that the Allied Nations would have to seize French territory wherever that was necessary, to keep the Axis from taking it.

A large part of this job naturally falls to Uncle Sam: Strategic properties like Martinique on the eastern rim of the Caribbean Sea, for example, and other French islands of that area, along with French Guiana on the northern rim of South America, where there is already an American "token force."

Such action will have to go much farther than that. One place especially necessary for the Allied Nations is Dakar, on the western bulge of Africa, directly across from the Caribbean. It is a strategic outpost in the Atlantic. It is also a threat to the important Allied air route from the Gulf of Guinea northeast through Central Africa to Egypt and the Near East. Madagascar, in the Indian Ocean southeast of Africa, controls another vital route, but that may be left to Britain. Uncle Sam can't handle everything.

ROLL OF HONOR

ANOTHER country is clamoring for the honor of having been the one to spill Hitler. The Poles put in a claim not long ago, on the strength of their five-weeks resistance, better than France could do. When the Nazi downfall comes, the continued struggles of the Norwegians and Yugoslavs will be found to have tied down German forces badly needed elsewhere. Everybody knows what the Russians have done.

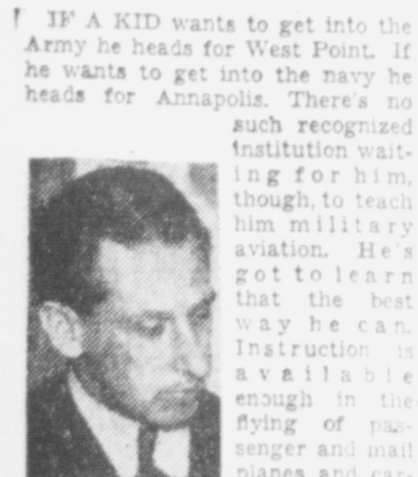

Then come the Greeks. Evangelos Sekeris, minister of education and religion in the overthrown Greek government, maintains that the Greek defeat of Italy and their strong Greek fight against Germany had cost the Germans more time than they could spare, and had thus given Russia time to prepare. There is a good deal to be said for his argument.

It is a lengthening list, this of the nations that have interfered with or upset the German effort. It is, if there ever was one, a roll of honor.

When the British and Chinese start licking the Japs in Burma, the tide must be turning.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

Maj. De Seversky

IF A KID wants to get into the Army he heads for West Point. If he wants to get into the navy he heads for Annapolis. There's no such recognized institution waiting for him, though, to teach him military aviation. He's got to learn that the best way he can. Instruction is available enough in the flying of passenger and mail planes and cargo carriers, but that's on record.

Such experts as Major Alexander De Seversky and Charley Lindbergh, now in charge of Henry Ford's aviatorial productivity have spoken for it. In fact, they've holed. The major's more vocal than Charley, who never does say much, but he's on record.

According to military cloudmen the generality of folk simply haven't yet realized what aviation will do shortly to the art or science of business of up-to-date warfare. Army and Navy professionals are included in the generality. Indeed, growl the cloudlanders, the surface scrappers are rather super-unwilling to recognize that they're due to be outclassed soon by flying's development.

How Fighting Progressed
The guess is ventured that warriors of yore were similarly slow at sensing the imminence of change in details of their occupation's requirements.

Originally fists presumably were relied on, perhaps with biting and scratching as auxiliary tactics. Presently clubs were introduced; then the chucking of missiles—pieces of rock and such stuff. Next the clubs were sharpened into swords and slings were devised to give added impetus to the hurling, as in the case of David and Goliath. Spears started to figure.

It was pretty short-range work, nevertheless. William of Normandy evolved the longbow and, with it, whined the far out of the shorter-range English at Hastings. Yet, even then, troops couldn't be transported from front to front as lively a pace as commanders desired, so Genghis Khan invented cavalry and what he did to Europe with 'em was a-plenty.

Presently—gunpowder! If anybody, at that stage of the game, had suggested the creation of a government department on gunpowder as a warfare essential, the gambler that he'd have been rated as recommending an useless outfit as Lowell Mellett's Office of Government Reports is advertised today.

Look at it, though, as of the moment's writing! There are forecasters who believe that aviation will decide the pending war; maybe more 100-percent-odd man land and sea forces.

Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk of the exiled Czechoslovakian government is one of 'em. Jan's surmise is that the recent aerial raid over Nippon will dispose of the Axis permanently.

Japs Are Learning
His contention is that the Nips thought they were safe, not having been directly smashed at. Now they know better, for the raid on 'em is adequately verified. Their military class is a suicidal crew, but their rank and file are referred to by Jan Masaryk as exceptionally good quitters. Besides, he remarks, they will have to keep their planes at home, for defensive purposes, instead of shooting 'em abroad, for bombings of places like Pearl Harbor.

Let Japan blow up, and Jan's prediction is that Italy'll follow over night.

Conquered Europe will rebel at the first opportunity, Jan forecasts. Premier Franco of Spain, hitherto a pro-Axis, certainly won't want to come in at any such juncture.

Minus Italy and Japan, and with Spain gone too, and with all the Balkans and the Low Countries, probably, on the rampage, Jan anticipates a German outbreak of anti-Hitlerism.

And, of course, there still will be the United States, Britain and China and Russia remaining for Adolf to be dealt with.

Some prognosticators speak of a probable four or five-year prolongation of the muck. Jan Masaryk hints at a flinging out of the quite unexpected. The Germans, he observes, are not last ditchers—as witness the last war

JAPAN PREPARING DRIVE

WASHINGTON —Inside intelligence information is that Japanese propaganda agents are now marshalling their forces for a concerted attack against the United States in Latin America, with Argentina, Brazil, and Chile as focal points.

Japan will resort to a number of typical Axis methods to sway neutral countries away from collaboration with the United States, including the Axis-worn tactics of making overtures and giving assurances that she has no imperialistic aims toward these countries. On the other hand, the Japanese will emphasize that the United States has been greedy in her international trade relations and has imperialistic designs on Central and South America.

In launching this propaganda attack Japan has instructed her agents to do everything possible to solicit the good-will of Spanish and Portuguese representatives in Latin American countries.

In addition to propaganda agents and diplomatic representatives, Japan has recruited agents in commercial firms throughout both Europe and the American countries to propagandize persons of Latin culture and Catholic faith. In this connection, plans have been made to go even so far as to try to exploit His Holiness, The Pope.

Already $50,000 has been forwarded to Japanese representatives in Chile to be used in attempting to bribe government officials.

One of the most audacious phases of the Japanese plan is the one that calls for an attempt to induce a revolution in the United States by cooperation with factional groups within the country, and creating dissension among the people by sniping at the Roosevelt Administration.

REPUBLICAN HARMONY

Except for a brief, isolationist flare-up against Wendell Willkie's resolution pledging full support to Roosevelt's war policies, the Chicago meeting of the Republican National Committee was completely harmonious.

This was due chiefly to skillful GOP Chairman Joe Martin, who not only engineered adoption of the Willkie proposal, but placated a Willkie-hating bloc of mid-Western committeemen who were itching for a showdown brawl. Also, Martin put his foot down firmly on any talk about 1944 presidential candidates, which was another friction-maker.

However, there was one minor slip-up which had Martin in hot water for a few moments.

According to custom, the chairmen-to-be of various committees offer the resolutions for creation of the committees. John E. Jackson, national committeeman from Louisiana, was slated to head up the committee on proxies, but Martin forgot to notify him.

When it came time to appoint this committee, Martin declared: "The chair recognizes the gentleman from Louisiana, Mr. Jackson."

DIET AND HEALTH

Effects of Alcoholic Beverages on Diabetics

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I HAVE been asked to answer the question as to whether alcoholic beverages are harmful to people with diabetes or whether, by saving caloric intake, they are beneficial.

Few people who drink cocktails realize how many calories they are taking in. The caloric value of alcohol is seven calories per gram as compared with four calories for starches, four for proteins and nine for fat.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

It is true that alcohol has no carbohydrates and therefore should theoretically be used by the diabetic in order to provide him with extra calories without increasing his carbohydrate intake. But in actual practice the use of alcohol is so insidious that the diabetic may increase his caloric intake so that it is in excess of his required diet, in which case alcohol or no alcohol, he needs more insulin.

"Alcohol," say two authorities, who have made a special study of the subject, "which is clearly recognized as not convertible into sugar or acetone in the body, produces a return of sugar and other symptoms when added to the diabetic diet in quantities exceeding caloric tolerance."

If the intake of alcohol could be controlled so that its use were to replace carbohydrates, the action would not be injurious and the requirement for insulin should fall. Alcohol, in fact, in adequate dosage, should have the same effect on the nutrition of the diabetic as on the normal individual. It is devoid of vitamins. It does not increase or decrease acidosis.

Laboratory Studies
According to the studies of the Nutrition Laboratory of the Carnegie Institute, insulin has no effect directly on the rate of disappearance of alcohol from the body unless the insulin is given with sugar.

In Plato's republic the person with diabetes might use alcohol, but in the United States, where most people earn their own livings, the diabetics who drink are a menace to themselves and to others. In the first place, an alcohol breath may obscure a hypoglycemic reaction and it may also at the same time bring the diabetic person into disrepute.

Diabetics are as liable, perhaps more so than other people, to the complications of alcoholism, such as neuritis and dimness of vision. There is no more trying problem in a large hospital practice than to have a person brought in off the street in a coma who has evidently been drinking and at the same time has diabetes. It may be that the coma is due to the diabetes, but many instances will occur in which the whole condition may be ascribed to the alcoholism and the diabetic condition allowed to go untreated.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

S. R. W.:—Will you please tell me what causes neuritis and is there a cure for it?

Answer: Neuritis is most often caused by a focal infection in the teeth or tonsils or by a lack of vitamin B in the diet. The treatment is obviously to remove the focal infection and add vitamin B to the diet.

M. I.:—How long does it take for a cataract to ripen? Is the removal of a cataract a dangerous operation? How long does it take for the eyesight to become good again?

Answer: Cataract ripens in about six months to a year. The removal is not a dangerous operation in competent hands. The eyesight is restored immediately, but requires the use of glasses for close work. The operation is considered a major one and requires the patient to go to bed.

A. S.:—What is a fungus growth? Is it different from a fungus infection and in what way?

Answer: A fungus growth is an infection with any form of organism which is in the form of a primitive vegetable, rather higher in the scale of classification than a germ.

E. K.:—I have been told that the juice of a lemon taken every day will relieve sick headaches. Is this true?

Answer: Sick headache is an extremely complicated disease and varies a good deal in different people and I do not believe that it could be said that the juice of a lemon would relieve it.

M. H. G.:—What is Parkinson's disease? What are the symptoms, and is there a cure for it?

Answer: Parkinson's disease is a disease of the nervous system in which the muscles have a continuous tremor. There are different forms of Parkinson's disease, some of which can be cured by belladonna root.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. ### SYNOPSIS

Three young airline hostesses, TIBBY LANE, sweet and natural; STEENA WINTER, beautiful and sophisticated; and MARG BAKER, plain, sturdy and direct, share an apartment together in New York, where they are based. A friend of Tibby's, TOMMY DARE, is spending his first year of medical school at a clinic in Brooklyn. Steena sets her cap for WAYNE COURTRIGHT, wealthy official of the airline.

YESTERDAY: Tibby looks forward with great anticipation to her first flying lesson.

CHAPTER TWELVE

TIBBY NEED not have worried about Wayne Courtright's forgetting the promise he had made to teach her to fly. He looked forward to that tomorrow, when they were to meet at the field, almost as anxiously as she—to his own surprise. He did not know why he should feel so interested in this young girl who had dared to have the temerity to speak up to him—and who had apparently forgotten his existence after that!

"Well," he greeted her that afternoon of the first lesson, "so you came—and on time, too!" His gray eyes smiled their approval, not alone of her promptness, but of Tibby herself. She warranted approval in her trim navy slack suit, with its white collar and its braided trim that gave it a nautical air, a red kerchief, knotted turban fashion, holding her dark curls in place, her face lighted with that shining look.

"I wouldn't have been late for anything!" she assured him so gravely that he smiled, although his masculine vanity was not appeased. He knew it was the prospective lesson that caused such eagerness, not himself.

He resolved that before the lessons were over it would be a different story, forgetting so soon his other resolution, made the day before, that this was to be strictly a non-personal relationship.

This first lesson went very well. Courtright had arranged for a light trainer ship, 40-horsepower, instead of his own powerful 250-horsepower cabin plane. He explained to Tibby that it was best for her to learn to fly a light plane first. Tibby was so thrilled and nervous that she doubted her ability to fly anything. The little ship, especially after riding in the enormous liners, looked like a grotesque sort of insect that would have a will of its own. Could she really learn to take it off the ground and set it down again, all on her own? Could she make it skim over towns and country, rise up to be lost in a bank of clouds, let it fall like a leaf, only to bring it back with intricate delicacy to the proper altitude once more?

"You can do it," Wayne Courtright had almost uncanny faculty for reading her thoughts. "As soon as you get the feel of the stick you'll be amazed how simple it will be."

It was what she had said when he first had offered to teach her to fly. He said, as he had that first time, too, "I want to do it. I've enjoyed it every bit as much as you." Then on a lighter tone, as he took her hand briefly in helping her climb down, "I should think a girl as pretty as you would have other things to take up her evenings. Besides studying, I mean." There was that humorous twist around his handsome mouth.

Tibby's color deepened. She said, "I do—sometimes. But the studying shall come first. I want to learn all there is to know. All I can," she corrected, smiling shyly at her own seem. Hold it lightly, never take a hard grip—and remember, I am at the dual control!"

Then all she had to do, actually, was to pretend she was flying the small plane. Tibby's nerves grew a bit less taut. Courtright climbed in beside her. He gave her a reassuring smile; the motor roared; they were taxiing across the runway.

But Tibby had been mistaken when she had thought all she had to do was to remember to hold the stick lightly, not to grip it hard. After a few shallow turns, Courtright showed her about the throttle—"stick and rudder TOGETHER"—he warned her, cautioning her again never to tighten up on the stick.

The next turns they took were not nearly as shallow. Once the ship seemed to be completely on its side. It was not exactly a comfortable sensation. Tibby's heart leaped to her throat. She threw her instructor a furtive sideways glance. Again his smile held reassurance. The ship straightened. "You tightened up," he explained.

Then she must have been doing some of the flying by herself! Instead of being alarmed at this revelation Tibby experienced a sense of power; her heart was exultant. Maybe it was not going to be so difficult after all.

"Did you like it?" Courtright asked as they taxied back toward the hangar. "Now that you've had your first taste of wings, is it as wonderful as you thought it would be?" His keen eyes searched her face, watching the faint color spread to stain her cheeks, the bright radiance light her eyes.

"Just as wonderful," Tibby said, "only more so than I thought it would be. Oh, yes, I liked it!"

"Good," he seemed pleased with her response. "Next time we'll practice landings. And I was wondering . . . I have some books on meteorology and navigation—you'll have to pass a written test, you know, before you can take your flight test later—would you like to study them, let me help you some?"

He was taking this as seriously as she. It was no rash promise that he would regret. Tibby was so moved that foolish tears of gratitude swam in her eyes. "I'll study very hard," she said. "I'll have time lots of evenings, but you shouldn't do all this for me!"

large order. He had said he thought her pretty, surely not in comparison with Steena. Did he know that she and Steena lived together? But it did not matter whether he did or not. It had nothing to do with the flying lessons.

Perhaps that was why she said, rather stiffly, "Thank you very much. I will be here—on time—at two days after tomorrow. That was the time he had set. They would meet on this strictly impersonal basis of teacher and pupil at the field. There was no reason to think that Courtright would be interested to know where she lived, or with whom, or what she did except when she was flying, either in her capacity as hostess or when learning to pilot a ship by herself.

But there was someone who would be interested to know about these lessons, as Marg reminded Tibby when, as if it were a person, he would never "date" her, as he had Steena. There was absolutely no reason for Steena to object to his giving Tibby lessons. That was his affair.

"Just the same I wouldn't broadcast it if I were you," Marg hated always to be handing out advice, but Tibby was so young when it came to certain matters. Or maybe it was that she was so decent and honest she could not conceive that anyone else might not play above board, too. "I'd keep it a dark secret, as long as I could anyway, from our Steena, at least."

Tibby decided to keep it secret from Tommy, but only because she knew he would worry if he thought she were learning to fly. She did not like deceit toward anyone. She did not want to deceive Steena about her lessons. Of course she supposed she need not say anything about them, unless the subject popped up, which was not likely, although even that, in a way, was deceit.

However, Tibby did not have to say anything. Steena was the one to bring up the subject, to ask Tibby abruptly about the lessons she was taking from Wayne Courtright.

William Cook Speaks Before Garden Club

Spring Flowers Are Featured In Decoration

Beautiful arrangements of lilacs and tulips decorated the home of Mrs. Ione Reichelderfer, East Union street, when 50 members of the Pickaway County Garden Club gathered Friday for the May session. Mrs. Marshall Fenton, regional director, and Mrs. Sylvia Six Wittmeyer, Chillicothe, Mrs. William Cook, Gallipolis, C. M. Beatty, Scioto township, and Marilyn Blair, Circleville, were guests.

William Cook horticulturist, was guest speaker and gave a highly technical talk on plant propagation. He stressed the use of the best seed obtainable and advised soil sterilization. A mixture of sand, peat and sterilized soil brought best results as seed-beds for plants and seeds, and he spoke also of his fine results in the use of chemicals to speed up the growth of roots. He demonstrated the making of corsages from carnations, daisies, snapdragons and sweet peas, including wiring, taping and the finishing bows.

Mrs. Fenton urged attendance at the State convention which will be June 10-11 in Columbus with Louis Bromfield as guest speaker, and asked especially that club members attend the banquet, June 10.

Mrs. Wittmeyer discussed the Victory gardens of Chillicothe which are being sponsored by the civic organizations of the city.

Mrs. Orion King, chairman of the place committee for the June session, announced the annual dinner and meeting would be at Mrs. Marion's party home, South Court street, on June 5. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m. and election of officers will follow. Reservations are to be made with Mrs. King by June 3.

Mrs. Smith Hulse conducted the business meeting and appointed Mrs. F. K. Blair, Mrs. Turney L. Pontius and Miss Mary Heffner as members of the nominating committee to report a slate of officers at the June meeting.

Mrs. A. J. Lyle won a lovely crystal vase for the best decorated hat in the contest for the best decorations of real garden flowers.

Henry Swearingen distributed bulbs of 'Peggy Ann' gladiolus to garden club members.

A garden pilgrimage to Chillicothe was discussed with Mrs. Richard Jones named to make arrangements for some time later in May.

A delightful feature of the meeting was the surprise shower of miscellaneous gifts for Mrs.

LARGE AUDIENCE SEES EXCELLENT CAST THIS WEEK

Seniors of 1942 presented a comedy "Smilin' Through" in the auditorium on Thursday and Friday, April 30 and May 1.

Although the audience suffered from heat, the play written by Allan Langdon Martin, and produced by special arrangement with Samuel French was enthusiastically received. So stirring and enchanting was the play that many in the audience were moved to tears.

This fantastic story is familiar to most of the theatre and movie going public.

The performance of the young thespians rendered was outstanding. The lighting effects were unusual, the costumes were true to the period, and the garden setting was realistic.

Samuel R. Johnson, dramatic and speech instructor, directed the production.

Players, technicians—in fact the whole class wishes to thank Mrs. Harry Montellus, Mrs. R. P. Reid, Mrs. M. S. Rinehart, Circleville Cemetery Association, Mrs. Thomas McManamy, Mrs. W. M. Reid, M. H. Reynolds, Cliftona theatre, Lutz and Yates, Mrs. E. E. Clifton, Mrs. John Trone, Mrs. L. M. Mader, Mrs. W. C. Morris and Mrs. J. I. Smith Jr., for helping to make this production a success.

NEW LITERATURE IN CHS LIBRARY

Among the new books received by the library this week, three are outstanding. They are "The Pageant of South American History," "Why Europe Fights" and "Westward the Course."

"The Pageant of South American History" by Anne Merriman Peck deals with South American history from the ancient civilization of the Incas to our present day dream of a Pan-American. Vivid, compact and accurate, the flow of the story is fascinating and the pictures painted are warm and charged with color.

Walter Mills is the author of "Why Europe Fights." It deals with the author's view that the rise of totalitarianism, particularly in its German form, is the most direct assignable cause of the conflict now in progress.

"Westward the Course" by Paul McGuire is the third outstanding book received. If you should like to take a journey, unorthodox and unlimited to Hawaii, down to the Fiji and New Zealand, overland through Australia and across the Timor sea to Java, Bali and Sumatra, then on to Malaya and to Singapore, then this is the book for you.

EDITORIAL DON'T DO IT

Being in a position to know, I should like to tell you of the folly of waiting until the last minute.

Yes, I know there's a good movie on tonight and you can do that lesson that's assigned for way next Tuesday tomorrow night. But have you forgotten that club meeting tomorrow night and the party on the next night? And, oh yes, there's that term paper you have to work on. Hmm, now how can you work this? Well, then are your study halls. Only, then the teachers will keep on assigning everyday lessons that you have to get.

That's probably happened to you dozens of times in your high school life. And yet, do you learn from experiences? No, most of us just postpone everything until the night before and we have to stay up most of the night catching up.

And most of us, like to pass it off lightly, saying, "Oh, well, what's staying up most of the night one night a month or so?" If that were all there is to it, the matter of staying up late probably would be of little importance.

But the matter doesn't end there. The important thing about "putting off" is the fact that you are now training yourself for many years beyond high school.

No matter what you may be doing in later life, you'll get in trouble if you put off everything 'til the last minute. If you're a school teacher, you can't start teaching the last week of May. A lawyer can't start working on a murder case the night before the trial. And a doctor can't let his patients go or they may be dead when he finally gets there.

So you see, "putting off" isn't just a matter of having to stay up late catching up, but it tells you how you'll get along for many years to come.

—Marvine Hennes

CLUB MEMBERS CONTINUE WORK

Last Saturday the Stooze club started painting the bleachers around the football field. Stooze members worked Saturday morning and afternoon and have painted about half of the stands. Work went on Thursday, Friday afternoons and all day today.

This week's meeting was at David Betz's; next week's is to be at James Morrison's.

C.H.S. HARRIERS WIN S.C.O. MEET

At 5:30 Thursday afternoon, your roving reporter was with the track team leaving for Washington C. H. At about seven o'clock the meet began — Circleville, Washington C. H. and Wilmington competing for the South-Central Ohio league championship.

As you read in yesterday's Herald, Circleville won with 70 points, Washington having 51 and Wilmington 29.

With a background of the sinking sun, events began, Circleville taking the lead and holding it all the way.

SCHOOLS DISMISS EARLY

Because of a teachers' meeting at 4:00 o'clock, the pupils of Circleville high school were dismissed at that time on Tuesday, Friday, the pupils of all the city schools were dismissed at 2:45. Many of the pupils and the band members took part in the dedication of the Ted Lewis recreation center.

GIRL RESERVES ELECT OFFICERS

Junior Girl Reserves elected officers for next year at their last meeting. The results were as follows: president—Eleanor Mast; vice-president—Maxine Friedman; secretary—Anne Moeller; treasurer—Frances Meinfelder.

The Mother-Daughter Banquet will be May 14 in the social rooms at the high school.

It was necessary to change the time of the banquet to 6:00 because of an out-door concert that night.

Mrs. Edward Helwage, assisted by Mrs. Frank Webb, will prepare the meal.

C.H.S. STUDENTS JOURNEY TO OSU

This morning the scholarship team consisting of 30 students went to Ohio State university to compete in the annual district-state scholarship examinations. The tests are given annually, two pupils being chosen from each group by the teacher.

Tests are given in biology, algebra, plane geometry, chemistry, physics, American history, World history, Latin I and II, French I and II, English I, II, III, IV, bookkeeping, typing I, and shorthand I and II.

Through these columns the student body compliments these contestants and hopes they fared well in the tests and enjoyed the days activities.

Results will be published in the Red and Black next week.

C.H.S. GOLF TEAM BEATS FOE, 12-0

Thursday afternoon Circleville high school's golf team defeated Columbus Aquinas 12-0.

SOPHOMORE CLASS MEETS

A short sophomore class meeting took place Wednesday at 11:40. President Howard Moore heard a report of the class finances. ## CITY MARKSMEN SCORE SECOND IN CLOSE TEST

Circleville riflemen finished second in a triangular match Friday evening on the excellent range of the U. S. reformatory near Chillicothe. The county seat team totalled 1,465 to trail a Chillicothe aggregation which scored 1,476. Guards of the reformatory were third with 1,455.

The match was staged in the finest range in south central Ohio. It was built by guards under the recreation hall at the reformatory, concrete walls and floor were constructed, a perfect backdrop and perfect illumination provided. Each shooter has a stall of his own, a trolley is provided to carry the target back to the rifleman, and numerous other improvements have been made.

The entire room is soundproof. George (Doc) Leist, Circleville native, is a member of the team and was one of the guards most instrumental in developing the splendid range.

Chillicothe had 13 shooters in the competition, Circleville had seven and the reformatory eight.

REDS FINALLY WIN; CLEVELAND INDIANS LEAD

NEW YORK, May 2 — The Cleveland Indians, enjoying a 2½ game lead in the American league, were stalking their thirteenth victory in a row today. The Tribe, making their first foray of the season in the east, went to town yesterday with a 16-hit, 13 to 6 triumph over the Senators.

The Pirates tightened the race in the National league by defeating the Dodgers, 7 to 6, in a riotous outburst that saw Manager Frankie Frisch ousted from the buccaner bench for the second straight day. The victory pushed Pittsburgh within three games of the lead.

The Tigers blasted the Yankees 7 to 2 on four-hit pitching by Dizzy Trout to take second place in the American league race and force the Yankees back into third place.

The Cincinnati Reds snapped a four-game losing streak with a 6 to 5 triumph over the Phils. Elmer Riddle scoring his first win of the season. Riddle, last year's most effective pitcher in the senior loop, gave 11 hits, but kept them well scattered.

The Cubs outslugged the Giants 13 to 9, tallying 14 hits off five New York pitchers. Babe Dahlgren, who had been benched for ineffective hitting, celebrated his return to the Chicago lineup with four hits and a walk for a perfect day at the plate. Hugh East and Harry Feldman, Giant pitchers, both hit home runs before being knocked out of the box.

Ken O'Dea's home run in the tenth gave the Cardinals an 8 to 7 victory over the Braves. Stan Musial's homer with one aboard in the ninth sent the game into extra innings.

COUNTY TRACK STARS WORK IN FOUR WAY MEET

Tuning up for the annual Pickaway county track and field meet scheduled at New Holland next Friday beginning at 10 a. m., four of the schoolboy aggregations gathered at Salt Creek school Friday afternoon for a meet which saw the host school come out on top.

Salt Creek scored 33 points to edge Jackson, which had 28 2-3. Other schools competing were Atlanta with 26 1-3 and Washington with 21.

Chester (Red) Roush, Salt Creek mentor, reported fast times in several events.

Several other trial meets have been held throughout the county this Spring, with several schools, among them being Ashville and Pickaway, showing strength. New Holland which wins more track meets than any other school in the county will put another strong team in on the course.

Harold K. Costlow, superintendent at New Holland, is tournament this year, and he has employed William (Bill) Griffith of Columbus, former Circleville high coach, to direct the event. Numer-

About This And That In Many Sports

Most successful athletic year in the last 20 in Circleville high school is rapidly nearing an end, and much to the regret of hosts of Circleville fans who have enjoyed the school's endeavors in various fields of activity. . . First came the football season which saw a battling Tiger team lose only twice, the once and win five times against the best competition south central Ohio could provide. . . A couple of breaks would have made the season one without defeat. . . The basketball season was a disappointment since many believed that the Tigers were capable of playing much better basketball than they did through most of the year. . . Victories over Mount Vernon, Wilmington and Ashville highlighted this year. . . The usual early Spring lull prevailed for a time until the track and golf teams swung into action. . . The harriers coached by Roy Black are really going to town, the South Central Ohio league victory of Thursday evening being the climax. . . Several contests are still on the schedule, and these may see even additional successes put into the record book. . . The golf team has won three and dropped one decision, and the score it marked up this week was good enough last Spring to win the state title. . . The four boys wearing the Red and Black added up an aggregate of 310 strokes in calculating Aquinas of Columbus. . . If the team can come even close to this figure in its district and state meets it will come home a state champion***

It's just about time for the powers-that-be in charge of the Ted Lewis recreation center to get going on organization of a couple of softball leagues. . . The season is here, the evenings are long enough to permit a couple of games to be played, and there are plenty of youngsters just waiting for the opportunity to get into organized softball leagues***

DERBY REMAINS WIDE OPEN AS STARTING NEARS

Beat Him, What They All Are Saying About Each Of Seventeen Racers

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2 — Beat him! That's what they were saying about each of some 17 racers named for the 68th running of the $75,000 added Kentucky Derby here today.

No matter where you went in this madhouse town—you got a tip. It seemed everyone knew something about each of the 17 probable starters, in the largest field to run for the roses since War Admiral scampered home in 1937.

As the largest crowd ever to pack this historic track, about 100,000 citizens, converged on the downs, the race was still considered as wide open as the general admission gate.

Despite all previous talk, theories and rumors, it seemed Ben Whitaker's Requested might go to the post the favorite.

The reason? This is the screwiest Derby that ever came down the pike.

If you are from Kentucky you are supposed to bet the Greentree entry of Devil Diver and Shut Out; if you want to bet the horse with the biggest heart you bet Alsab; if you want to bet the form you bet Requested and if you wish to knock down the above trio you bet anything from Apache to Dogpatch.

Here's the list of entrants dropped into the old satchel as dawn came up yesterday. They're listed in post position order:

Fair Call, First Fiddle, Shut Out, Sweep Swinger, Devil Diver, Hollywood, Alsab, Sir War, First Prize, Sun Again, Fairy Manah, Dogpatch, Boot and Spur, Requested, Apache, Valdina Orphan and With Regards.

The south makes the Greentree pair a 3 to 1 choice, but we think either Alsab or Requested will wind up the betting public's choice. Sentiment, alone, will supply the dough for Alsab, for you cannot move around these parts without stumbling over a citizen who thinks the son of Good Goods has been "nursed" for the big race.

As we get it, and you can have it, the New York money men will send it in, to the hit, on Requested. They think the Wood Memorial winner is home; as the smart set says: "Could be." But we don't think so.

If they all go, which they won't, the gross value of the stake will be $87,250 richest prize of all Derby history. The net to the fortunate owner will be a paltry $65,225.

Thirteen Boys And Girls In High Five Percent Among
Thousands Of Pupils

Patrick LaRue, Madison township eighth grade pupil, is about the happiest youngster in Pickaway county school system. The youth was named as the outstanding eighth grader, scholastically, in Pickaway county Saturday by virtue of the splendid score of 170 which he made in the state eighth grade test conducted April 17. A perfect score would have been 200.

His grade put him in the high one percent in the entire state, and may put him near the top of that one percent. Pupils with grades of above 164.6 were in the top one percent. School authorities are awaiting a complete report from the state concerning young LaRue's rating in the state lineup.

He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. LaRue.

Many other Pickaway county eighth graders did exceptionally well in the state examination, 13 finishing with grades of better than 148.5, which places them in the high five percent in the state. There were 28,888 pupils' test papers graded in Ohio.

Three youngsters were tied for second place with a grade of 158, including George W. Speakman, Ashville; Dorman L. Stein, Madison; and Charlene Wilson, Walnut.

With 157 came Kathryn Hartsaugh of Salt Creek, and one point behind her were Anne L. Rader, Ashville; Richard W. Fisher, Madison; and Carl E. Cupp, Wayne.

Others who finished in the upper five percent in the state and their grades were Guy Boyer, Wayne, 153; Dolores Tomlinson, South Bloomfield, 152; Roy M. Binion, Duval, 151; John E. Irwin, Ashville, 150; Marilyn Briggs, New Holland, 149.

Numerous youngsters are listed in the upper 25 percent in the county, including the following: John W. Williams, Perry; Wayne L. Bower, Pickaway; Jack L. Leist, Salt Creek; Ruth M. Nance, Monroe; Homer Hill, New Holland; Patricia Wolfe, Pickaway; Marjorie Hunter, Salt Creek; Evelyn M. Hanley, Walnut; Helen L. Wright, Deer Creek; William Long, Perry; Harry V. Conley, Pickaway; George F. Wadlington, Salt Creek; Donald L. Hoover, Walnut; Albert Johnston, Ashville; Neil Leatherwood, Ashville; Mary Lou Swank, Ashville; and Agnes Goode, Washington.

All of these pupils scored above 120 in the test, the median for all eighth grade who took the test being 104. There were 290 papers graded in Pickaway county.

Scholarship teams of Circleville and Pickaway county schools were in Columbus Saturday competing in annual district-state tests. Thirty-eight pupils represented Circleville high, while county schools sent a complete team with two pupils in each subject.

EVERY STATE IN UNION INCLUDED IN DEATH TOLL

Of 2,991 Killed About 2,000 Lost Lives In Raid On Pearl Harbor

ualties in various war theatres, but the all-inclusive list embraces fighting against axis submarine raiders in the Atlantic and against Japanese forces in Hawaii, Wake, Guam, the Philippines and the southwest Pacific.

The total does not include United States Army casualties. To date the War department officially has announced the death of 283 officers and enlisted men. In addition, more than 35,000 American-Filipino troops were presumed captured in the fall of Bataan peninsula in the Philippines.

Of those listed by the Navy as dead, the majority, about 2,000, were killed in the surprise Japanese attack upon Pearl Harbor.

Missing Feared Dead

Many of those listed as missing also are presumed to be dead, some in action during the furious battle of Java. For example, approximately 1,200 were believed to have been lost in the sinking in the southwest Pacific of the aircraft tender Langley and the naval tanker Pecos.

No accurate check of the crews on the two ships is possible immediately because a number of men from both vessels were rescued and others may have reached isolated islands in that area. First the Langley was sunk, and survivors were picked up by the Pecos, which subsequently was destroyed by the Japanese.

"The classification 'missing' covers those who cannot be accounted for, some of whom may be prisoners, some of whom may have been rescued at sea and landed at isolated spots and have had no opportunity to communicate with United States naval authorities," the Navy explained.

Marines Missing

Included in the list of missing are more than 400 marines who held out so valiantly on Wake island for two weeks early in the war, but finally were overwhelmed by Japanese forces and are presumed to be dead or prisoners of war.

Still fighting on Corregidor with Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright's forces are nearly 3,500 bluejackets and marines who were transferred from Bataan to the island fort just before the peninsula fell to the Japanese April 8.

Behind these cold statistics are stories of heroism virtually without parallel in American military history. In every naval action since the outbreak of war United States forces in the Pacific have been greatly outnumbered, both in manpower and warships.

One of the best examples of the way American bluejackets are fighting in the present conflict was offered recently in the disclosure of the sinking of the destroyer Peary by Japanese bombers at Port Darwin, Australia.

Sailors Praised

"Observers who witnessed the last engagement of the Peary described the conduct of her crew as beyond all praise," the Navy said. "Gun crews remained at their battle stations continuing to fire until they were forced by rising water to leave their stations.

Congress Resolution Says No Compromise With Britain Possible

in India also blasted heavily at the dock area of Japanese-held Rangoon in Burma, and that attack—the third launched by that group of United States war birds—was the only favorable news for the United Nations emanating from that theatre of the war.

Cloud Over Burma

In northern Burma, where the Japanese invaders and Chinese defenders are locked in violent combat, the exact situation was not known early today. The Tokyo radio, hardly a reliable source, claimed that the provisional Burmese capital of Mandalay had fallen to the forces of Nippon, but latest United Nations advices told of heavy fighting at Kyaukse, 20 miles south of Mandalay.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek was reported to be rushing four new columns of Chinese troops toward the fighting zone in a desperate effort to halt the Japanese drive, which already has carried within 50 miles of China's border.

The aerial war in Europe appeared to be abating somewhat, although Royal Air Force bombers roared over the channel last night and watchers on the eastern English coast heard terrific explosions from the occupied coasts of Belgium and France.

News from the Russian front continued to tell of sensational exploits by the Soviet guerrilla forces. In the vicinity of Orel, these units killed 5,000 Germans during sanguinary engagements which resulted in the freeing of 345 villages from Nazi control, reports said.

Hard War In Russia

Heavy fighting was continuing on the Kalinin front where 900 German soldiers were reported killed in two days of battle. Near Leningrad, the guerrillas, operating behind German main lines, were said to have killed nearly a thousand Nazi troops.

The anti-Nazi demonstrations, during which German police shot and killed several persons, were reported in dispatches reaching Switzerland from Norway.

In addition to the Gasmata raid, General MacArthur's communique announced destruction of at least two more Japanese planes and said intensive air and artillery bombardments were continuing against Corregidor in the Philippines.

No officer or man left the ship until it sank under him. A number of survivors were later rescued.

This is just one of many similar stories of heroism behind the Navy's grim casualty list. Many of them already have been told, and others will be as the war progresses.

CAA headquarters in Washington. Salt Lake City airport attendants heard the plane overhead and were preparing for its landing when suddenly they heard a terrific crash, audible for ten miles around. Then, the plane's gasoline tanks exploded, creating a gigantic flash.

"Trip No. 4 has crashed!" said an observer in the airport's control tower.

Flaming Wreckage

Salt Lake City police were immediately notified and they set out for the flaming wreckage, leading a speeding caravan composed of crash crews and every available ambulance in the city.

A spring rain made the roads a muddy mess. Many of the rescuers, including this reporter who had joined the caravan racing up Ensign peak—scene of the crash—were bogged down in the mud.

A United Airlines spokesman reported that flying conditions were favorable and that visibility had been nine miles at the time of the crash.

Airport officials believed that motor failure probably was the cause of the accident.

They based their belief on a report from Gearhart, who watched the plane on its final few seconds in the air. Gearhart, owner of the Log Cabin Inn on U. S. Highway 91, about five miles north of Salt Lake City, ran to the wreck scene. But leaving his inn, he had an aide telephone the airport. Gearhart's companion said:

"We just saw a plane flying low over the inn—we've just heard a crash."

The passenger ship reported "everything OK" at 10:56 p. m. when it circled as though for a landing at the Salt Lake airport. It crashed a few minutes later.

The plane, crashed on Ensign peak, 6,500-foot landmark which is inside the city limits, but in extremely rugged country.

GEORGIA JOCK FOOLS JAP GOBS

Asiatic squadron commanded by Cooper. Among other United Nations ships, it was trapped by the superior enemy force while working through the Bali straits at the close of the Java campaign.

The United Nations naval units had been dispersed and ordered to make for Australia, so Cooper's ship parted company with H.M.A.S. Perth, the U.S.S. Houston and the Dutch destroyer Evanston.

The latter ships were overwhelmed in the Sunda strait, and the Houston, at the time, engaged the enemy with only two turrets operating.

Enemy Sighted

Cooper's vessel laid on with all speed possible and entered the Bali straits near midnight. It was just clearing when the lookout telephoned from the bridge and reported:

"There are enemy vessels on the port and starboard bow, sir."

He knew they were enemy ships because Cooper's was the only United Nations vessel in the Bali straits.

"Georgia Jock's" boat went among what he believed to be a mixed squadron of light and heavy cruisers so quickly that he had no choice but to drive straight ahead, firing torpedoes into port and starboard sides as they passed.

Almost immediate explosions told them they had scored hits, certainly damaging two and possibly three cruisers. If more than one torpedo struck any of the lighter ships, the Japanese might have lost one vessel.

Destroyer Escapes

The American destroyer quickly disappeared in the enveloping darkness and mist just as the Jap cruisers opened fire in her direction — and, incidentally, at one another.

Suddenly, off in the distance, a signal lamp started working toward the cruisers and the crew on Cooper's ship realized that the Jap cruiser squadron had a flanking destroyer screen which they had yet to run.

But not another vessel was sighted and when morning came, "Georgia Jock's" ship was far to the south, safely en route to Australia.

Later, aerial reconnaissance fliers reported that a damaged Jap vessel was being escorted toward Sourabaya. "Jock" made no claim to any successes in the encounter, however, because of the uncertainty of the night action.

But the ship's crew maintain they were too close to miss leaving their mark on the enemy, and somewhere at sea today, they are still jubilant over their successful escape.

CONGRESS MAPS FREEZING LAWS

program which would include freezing of wages, and hope to offer it as an amendment to some bill in the Senate," said Sen. Clark.

"While I approve of the President's general program, I believe that supplementary legislation will be necessary. The President's program leaves out of the freezing process wages, processing and transportation. It may not be necessary to include transportation because of the regulatory authority which has existed for years.

"I believe that we must include everything in a stabilization program, and I don't believe that there would be much opposition if every group were treated on an equal basis."

Gore, who sponsored the Baruch plan in the House when price control legislation was enacted, hopes to win hearings before the House banking committee on his bill.

The Gore plan, now being drafted, includes freezing of wages, farm prices at parity and compulsory savings.

Wages generally would be frozen at a specific date, with the war labor board being given authority to increase sub-standard wages or to increase wages if it were necessary to draw men from civilian industry to war plants.

His compulsory savings plan would be on a graduated basis, with every salaried person being required to invest a part in war bonds.

"It is necessary to go all the way to make the freezing plan a success," he said.

BLAST FATAL TO EIGHT WOMEN BEING PROBED

PITTSBURGH, May 2—In the twisted, broken mass of steel and timber, federal and state authorities today sought the cause of the explosion in the torpedo room of the Central Railroad signal company in Versailles Borough, near McKeesport, that sent eight women to their deaths and injured a dozen others, at least seven seriously.

FBI agents, who rushed to the scene immediately after first word of the blast reached Pittsburgh, reportedly were withdrawn from the investigation after it was learned that the company was not engaged in war work. The plant manufactures railroad torpedoes, flares and other signal devices.

Plant officials and other authorities were unable to advance any reason for the explosion.

"SABOTEUR," Alfred Hitchcock's graphic revelation of enemy activities inside wartime America, co-stars Priscilla Lane and Robert Cummings. Otto Kruger (right), has the prominent role of an axis agent. The above scene shows Robert Cummings and Priscilla Lane in search of the saboteur who destroyed an aircraft factory in which Cummings was a worker. The timely picture, "Saboteur" starts Sunday at the Grand theatre for a three day run.

was scattered all around, I saw a man. He moved his arm and groaned.

I yelled to him: "Don't give up! I'm coming." But he didn't answer me.

It was pretty hot, but I found a blanket from the plane and I ran over and covered him with it. It wasn't any use. He was dead. Then I saw a lady and her little baby. They were dead, too. It wasn't nice to look at but I felt better about it when I looked around and saw that most of them must have been killed instantly.

I waited around until other men came and then I went away. I was glad to get away. I never saw anything like that. I never want to see anything like that again.

The plane was going fast and I can't understand why the pilot didn't see the mountain and turn away from it. Maybe the snow blinded him. It was raining on the ground, but it was snowing on top.
